

THE CENTRAL RECORD.

THIRTY THIRD YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, OCTOBER 5, 1922.

NUMBER 10.

THIRD VICTORY FOR LANCASTER HI

Swamps Versailles Hi by Score of 28 to 7

The Lancaster High School football team added their third victory to their list when they swooped down on the Versailles High School and took the Woodford county lads into camp by the score of 28 to 7.

This was a real test for Captain Cox and his green and white warriors. As he led his men into the city of Versailles, their eyes were started to see so many of the business houses, in fact all dressed their windows in the Versailles High School colors. Promptly at 2:30 P. M. the Lancaster High School football team were loaded on trucks, brought to the school building by the Versailles lads and they headed by a brass band of twenty-five pieces, followed by Coach "Happy" Chandler's team from Versailles, followed by the entire school, formed a parade over a mile in length. After parading over the entire city the business men and banks and professional men of that city, closed their places of business, and in motor cars paraded over the city, and on the football gridiron, where they were greeted by some fifteen hundred to two thousand people, who assembled there to see Coach "Happy" Chandler's men try to down the strong team headed by Captain Cox, who led his men on the field, where the brass band was playing. He led on the team that went up against such great odds and he led on the team that won the great contest at Versailles under such trying circumstances.

Lancaster High won the toss and decided to receive the pig skin and played in the Versailles territory throughout the first quarter and after many hard bucks through the Versailles line they managed to shove the pig skin over the line for the first touchdown. Captain Cox, as he usually does, dropped back and sent the ball between the goal posts for an extra point, the quarter ending with the ball going over the goal line.

The second quarter found the ball up and down the field with no scoring, only playing the Versailles lads off their feet and they were constantly crying, time out.

The third quarter found both teams scoring, Lancaster going over first, when the Versailles lads caught a forward pass for their first and only marker. The fourth quarter was the one that brought the entire bunch of rosters to their feet, when Captain Cox threw a forward pass to Anderson at end, catching same and running thirty yards for a touchdown, making the entire score stand 28 to 7, in favor of Lancaster. With only a minute longer to play and the score standing as above given, the Lancaster High School Student Manager J. R. Haselden, very politely asked the "white breches" band to play "Nearer My God To Thee," and this request was granted.

The entire Lancaster High School team played wonderful ball throughout the contest and fought every second of the game, the back field consisting of Cox, Gastineau Brothers, Walker Robinson and Crutchfield. They had perfect interference and the end runs and line plunges were fine and were highly complimented by all who saw the contest and the reason that they were able to make such gains was from the fact that the line consisting of Bratton, H. C. Cox, Kavanaugh, Crutchfield, Estes, G. D. Robinson, Henry, and Anderson played like old veterans. We would like to make more mention of all the players, but we cannot because they all played like clocks work and worked fine.

Some seventy-five patrons of Lancaster, accompanied the boys to Versailles.

Creech, Speake, Gooch, Moore and Stapp were there ready to go in the contest, but L. H. S. was outweighed as it was.

Jaz. Park refereed the game with Alexander of Louisville, headlinesman and they both called a good clean, fair game. Their decisions were fair and square. Bradley Bourne umpired the game for Versailles.

HANDSOME GIFT

James L. Watkins, of Lexington Presents Bryantsville Church Generous Donation

Unquestionably one of the handsomest pieces of stone masonry in Garrard county, is the fence or stone wall which has been recently finished, and stands in front of the new Methodist church at Bryantsville, the gift of a former Garrard county boy, Hon. James L. Watkins, of Lexington. This generous donation will live many many years as a memorial to his generosity and will be admired by generations yet unborn. The wall is built of native stone, quarried within one mile of the church, and is the center of much attraction to those who visit or pass through this thriving little hamlet.

As a boy, and it hasn't been very many years ago, Mr. Watkins played on the streets of this village; it was there in the old church he attended his Sunday Schools and spent many years of his young life.

He is at present one of the foremost citizens of Lexington, being a member of the firm of Smith, Watkins and Company and associated with many other industrial institutions of the Blue Grass capital.

The members of this splendid church, the citizens of Bryantsville, and the community at large, are deeply grateful to Mr. Watkins for his liberality in presenting so substantial a gift, and we dare say, future generations will rise up and call him blessed.

Perryville Bank Fails

State Commissioner to Take Over Boyle Institution

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 2. The Peoples State Bank and Trust Company of Perryville, Boyle county, will be placed in the hands of James P. Lewis, state banking commissioner, tomorrow for liquidation made necessary by shortage in reserves. W. W. Peavyhouse, deputy state banking commissioner, will go to Perryville tomorrow to take temporary charge of the affairs of the bank. This action was decided on at the request of officers of the bank.

The stockholders probably will lose on their investment but all deposits will be paid in full, according to Mr. Peavyhouse. The bank is capitalized at $10,000, with surplus of $40,000. The deposits total $300,000, with loans approximately $475,000.

The directors and officers of the banks called on Commissioner Lewis today to ask that the bank be taken over by the banking department. W. C. Kern is president of the bank, and Claude B. Minor, representative of Boyle county, in the 1922 session of the general assembly, is cashier.

Hiking to California

Two young men, Calvin Wilson and Frank Smith, and claiming Connellsville, Pa., as their home, passed through Lancaster last Thursday. They are hiking it through and have Los Angeles, California, as their destination. The boys are 19 and 20 years old and are making the trip as an experiment and seemed to be enjoying every mile of it. They were very complimentary of the hospitality that had been shown them since reaching Kentucky, adding that the old state was true to its reputation it had in the East. They are taking the Dixie Airline South to Chattanooga, and left here Friday morning.

New Addition Opened

The sale of lots in the new Herring Addition was quite a success, seventeen having been sold publicly by Hamilton and Thomas last week.

The lots were sold to local people who will build at once and the future looks bright for ready sales for other lots that were not offered on that day. The new street, runs from Creamery street east, intersecting it about midway between Richmond and Buckeye streets.

City Council Holds Monthly Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council convened last Monday night, but very little business of importance was brought up.

After allowing the usual list of claims against the city, other matters were taken up and soon disposed of. Councilman Dickerson made a motion that all residents living along Hill Court, Stanford street and Campbell street, where petitions had been filed, that they were ordered to put down concrete pavements.

The motion was lost, three voting no and two voting yes; Councilman Hulley being absent. George Owens was granted a permit to sell soft drinks at his place of business, on Buford street. Haselden Bros. were granted a permit to erect a storage building on the rear of the vacant lot adjoining their garage. A. H. Haslin & Co., asked that a street crossing be put in opposite their place of business, they to bear one-half of the expense. This was referred to the street committee.

Fast driving on Richmond street was reported to the council and a traffic officer will be placed there to arrest all violators.

Century Old Tax Books Located in Harrodsburg

When carpenters removed the steps from an old building in Harrodsburg, recently purchased by James J. Graves, for the purpose of making certain alterations a set of tax books almost a century old were located beneath the steps, says the Harrodsburg Herald. It is thought the books were placed there many years ago by someone connected with the city government of Harrodsburg. It is stated that the tax rate at that time was 3 1/2 cents per hundred dollars and the lists include many prominent citizens of that day, among them Rev. Jesse Head, Beriah McGuffin, Nathan Stone, and others.

70,000 GROWERS IN BURLEY POOL

Seek 5,000 New Members; Drive to be put on in October; Books of Association Close on November 6th.

According to figures of the Field Service Division compiled last Saturday, September 30th, the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association has 70,000 members on its rolls and is planning an active campaign for the month of October by which it is expected to add 5,000 more members to the big tobacco co-operative, closing with an intensive drive the last week of the time given outside growers in which to sign—October 30th, to November 6th.

Assistant Chief of the Field Service Division William Collins said that 567 contracts had been signed by new members the past week.

"We urge our membership to renew their efforts to sign up the outsiders before November 6th," said Mr. Collins. "The county organizations that did such splendid work last year again will go into the field before the closing date, November 6th, and good results are anticipated."

"It is expected that the members in every county will give their loyal support to the sign-up and will actively assist the county chairman in the final canvass. Five thousand new members before November 6th is the aim of the Association and its officers are confident that these will be signed and the total membership thus brought to 75,000."

Let's Go

Those of us who had the pleasure of accompanying our dandy little High School team to Versailles Friday appreciate the fact that all our school needs is some encouragement by your coming out to the games.

Our next contest will be tomorrow (Friday), when the local eleven hopes to take the strong High School eleven on from Danville. The Little Britain team is working hard under competent Centre College men and are determined to win over the Hi School, however, the locals are just as determined and are working hard in order to still another blue ribbon to their list.

Let's all go out and root for the Hi School football team which is by far one of the best that ever played on the local gridiron. Remember that you will be able to see some of the best games to be played in Kentucky here in Lancaster. PROVIDED, you show that you want them to play here as it costs money to bring such teams as the Lexington Blue Devils from Lexington and the Transylvania University second team from Lexington here. Unless we have larger crowds we are afraid that probably some of these contests will have to be cancelled as the Athletic Director Mr. McRoberts says it will be too expensive to have such good games played here. Let's all go out tomorrow, (Friday) at 3:30 and help them out.

Expert Mechanics

Messrs. Bradley Spratt and Ed Daugherty, two of Lancaster's popular and efficient mechanics, have formed a partnership and have rented the Arnold stable for storing automobiles and to do auto repair work. These gentlemen need no introduction to the automobile owners of Garrard county. They will be pleased to serve their old customers as well as any new ones who will trust their work to them, guaranteeing satisfaction and perfect workmanship. Give them a trial.

Mental Impulses Are

The Secret of Health

Cut the wire running from the power station to your home and you have no lights.

In a like manner permit a vertebra in the spine to impinge on a nerve running to that part of the body, and that part of the body ceases to function properly.

Chiropractic adjustments relieve the pressure on the nerve affected and the mental impulse flows normally.

Paint Lick Wins Last Game of Season

Clell Tatum, who is to pitch for Richmond against the Louisville Colonels there on Oct. 12th, twirled the Paint Lick nine to a shut-out victory over the Dixie Ice Cream team from Lexington at Paint Lick Friday, says the Richmond Register. He allowed only 5 hits. The game was a real pitcher's battle from start to finish. Tatum, however, holding the enemy at his mercy throughout. He is sore to prove the only pitcher in this neck of the woods to face Louisville. Paint Lick scored one tally in the first and two others in the second, but from that time on they were the victims of sterling pitching. Tatum struck out 15 of the men who faced him while his team cracked out eight hits in scoring their three runs.

This was the last game which will be played by the Paint Lick nine, which has won more games than lost. The lineup to face the Lexington team was as follows:

Tatum, pitcher; Roop, catcher; Lewis, first; S. Rogers, second; Ginter, short; Lackey, third; Dunn, left; Hensley, center; and Duerson, right.

Ten Garrard County Students at Eastern

Enrollment of the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School shows a 30 per cent increase in quantity and quality of the student body this year over any year before. Two-thirds of these students are high school graduates and will be in the college department of the institution. One-third will be in the secondary department. Many of the students are returning to complete the necessary work to secure their life diplomas, while others are here for the first time.

These students have enrolled for one semester of twenty weeks, instead of one term of ten weeks as in former years. The elimination of the term plan saves two weeks, one week of enrollment at the beginning of the term and a week at the end of each term. The next semester will begin February 12, 1923. The majority of the present student body will remain for the entire year with many others coming at the beginning of the next semester.

The following is a list of the students at Eastern from Garrard county:

Lula Anderson, Bertha Broadbush, Elsie Brown, Thomas Jennings, John H. Jennings, Elizabeth C. King, Mattie Mayes, Elbert Prewitt, Blanche Speake and Ida Speake.

Tankersley-Jenkins

With only a few intimate friends present, the marriage of Miss Ida Tankersley to Mr. Howard Jenkins, was consummated at the home of Mrs. Kate Swinebroad, on Richmond street yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. W. E. Rix, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating.

The marriage is the happy result of about one year's acquaintance and courtship, both parties being well known in Lancaster. The bride has been the home companion of Mrs. Swinebroad for several months, giving efficient service, faithful in the performance of her duties and had endeared herself warmly in the heart of Mrs. Swinebroad. The home was artistically decorated for the occasion, with potted flowers and ferns and formed a beautiful background for the marriage altar.

The groom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Jenkins, an energetic and popular young man, and is well worthy of the hand and heart he has won. He is 25 years old, while the bride is only 19 and might be taken for one much younger. The best wishes of all go out to them for a long and happy life together.

No More Sprinkling

On account of the extreme dry weather, curtailment of the city water is very imperative and the city council has ordered that all sprinkling be discontinued until the drouth is broken. This made necessary by the low water at the reservoir and every precaution must be used to conserve it in case of fire. If this order is violated the marshal is instructed to disconnect the consumer from the main.

LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS

Dr. J. E. Edwards Elected Post Commander; R. M. Meadows Re-elected Adjutant; Four Vice Commanders Elected

Great Prospects for the New Year For The American Legion

The regular election of the officers for the Hoidal Sanford Post No. 35 was held at the post club rooms Tuesday night and the following named legionnaires of this county were elected by unanimous vote: Dr. J. E. Edwards was elected Post Commander and that he will make one of the best Commanders the Post has ever had goes without saying. The newly elected Commander has always been an ardent worker and supporter of the local post and in his talk thanked the members for the honor bestowed upon him, said "that he was going to put forth his every effort to make this post not only one of the best posts in the State, but the best one." We heartily congratulate the members of the Hoidal Sanford Post in electing such a fine high class Christian gentleman as Dr. Edwards to lead the old "war horses" through the next year.

Mr. R. M. Meadows was re-elected Post Adjutant, he having served "one hitch" and did so in such a pleasing manner that the vets thought it best not to "swap horses in the middle of the stream." With this pair great work will be accomplished by the local Post.

Messrs. J. Wade Walker, Thos. K. Price, Chas. Land and Fred Sutton were elected the four Vice Commanders and with this quartette the Post Commander may rest assured that he will have the backing to the limit as these gentlemen all expressed themselves as going to assist Commander Edwards in his undertakings and that they were at his service to "command them." Messrs. Benj. Woods and Elmer Miller were elected Post Finance Officers and Master At Arms respectively and will make good in their new honored positions. Rev. Willie P. Rogers, who is so much admired and loved by every citizen in Garrard county was elected by standing vote in his honor as Chaplain of this Post. Mr. Rogers has always taken an active part in the Legion and whenever the time presents itself, one can always be assured that Rev. Rogers will more than do his part in assisting the other officers of this Post.

Commander Edwards outlined very briefly his work that he hopes to do in a very short time put into active work and if he carries out only one-half of his great undertakings, he will make by far the best Commander the local post has ever had.

The American Legion is here to stay. It is an organization of the service men for the service men and by the service men, and it behooves them to do everything that is within their power to get right in line and put their shoulders to the wheel and assist these newly elected turn the old wheel until they have accomplished the great work that is ahead of them. Mr. Service men, let's all fall in and work.

Commander Edwards announced last night that his executive committee would be appointed within the next few days.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST BAKING POWDER

American Legion News

Veterans of the world war expect to see one of the heaviest ring battles of the year when Bob Martin and Captain Bob Roper fight for the heavy weight championship of the American Legion in New Orleans, October 18th.

Martin won the championship of the A. E. F. and Roper bested all comers among the forces which remained in this country during the world war. The thousands of Legion members assembled here for their national convention will be evenly divided in their support of the two fighters because the Legion includes both A. E. F. and cantonment soldiers.

Martin and Roper have met three times, twice in "no decision" bouts and once when Roper won on points. Both are contenders for the world's title and it is probable that the winner at New Orleans will get a bout with Dempsey.

Roper bears the unusual record of never having been knocked out, although in his 58 fights he has tackled some of the best men in his division. During 1921 he fought 17 battles, losing to Al Roberts, Martin Burke, Dan O'Dowd and Pat McCarthy, winning on points from Homer Smith, knocking out Jim Griffin, Carl Morris, Frank Moran, Bill Reed and Al Roberts and fighting a draw with flattling Levinsky. He also fought no-decision bouts with Martin, Wiggins and Semader.

General Pershing proclaimed Martin the "mightiest fighting man of forty million fighting men." Martin's record bears out this statement as he has delivered 83 knockouts in 97 battles.

Martin has whipped all the prominent contenders for the World's title except Brennan and Roper. He lost to Brennan at New York in 1921, but his work has been steadily improving since that time and it is probable that he is now Brennan's master. In 1921 Martin fought 9 bouts, losing one to Brennan and one to Keiser. He drew with Capt. Roper, knocked out Martin Burke, Joe Cox, Gunboat Smith and Frank Moran.

The fight will be a 15 round decision bout; the main go will be preceded by three fast preliminaries and ten round semi-final local boys. Promoter Al Pillsbury will supervise the match which will be held in the Louisiana Auditorium. A crowded house is certain and those desiring the witness the fight would do well to wire the Legion Home here for reservations.

It will be the Army versus the Navy when Fay Keiser and Happy Littleton stage a fifteen-round decision fight for the middleweight championship of the American Legion during its national convention, at New Orleans, Oct. 16th.

Legionnaires who were in the Army are backing Keiser, while Littleton's supporters include thousands of former "gods."

Keiser has an enviable war record. As first sergeant, he led his company over the top at Montfaucon and was wounded in the shoulder shortly after going into action. He refused to return for first aid and stayed with his company, applying for treatment only after his unit had attained its objective late in the evening.

Keiser fought Bob Martin, A. E. F. heavyweight champion for the title at the Olympic games in Paris and gave

He has since defeated Martin at Bost—the champion a close run for the belt, ten as well as Herman Miller and Ray McMillan.

Littleton's war record is also good. He served four years in the Navy as a first class seaman. He was on the battleship Louisiana and served on two mine sweepers in the North Sea. While in the Navy, Littleton defeated Howard Trembley, Atlantic Fleet heavyweight champion. Littleton has fought Joe Chip, flattling Ortega, Billy Shade, Bob Roper and Chuck Wiggins.

The largest parade ever held in New Orleans will be seen October 18th, when 40,000 members of the American Legion in column of platoons march down Canal Street in review during the Legion national convention at New Orleans.

Nearly 100,000 visitors and delegates are expected to attend the convention and fully one-half of them will have on uniforms and join in the parade. More than 100 bands will be scattered throughout the parade in which they will be judged for the national convention band contest.

A cenotaph commemorating the soldier dead will be erected on the parquette of Canal street directly opposite Gold Star mothers' tribute at which all veterans will pay tribute to their fallen comrades with a salute as the column passes it. The route of the parade will cover a distance of approximately four miles and the head of the column is expected to reach its destination before the rear guard has passed the reviewing stand.

Legion state departments will march in order of their gain in membership during the last year, led by a guard of honor consisting of men drawn from the army, navy and national guard. Percentages of increase will be announced by national headquarters in time to place departments in their proper position in the column. Foreign war veterans who are not affiliated with the Legion will be in line in order of their country's entrance into the war.

Six Pecks an Acre

Found Best Rate to Seed Wheat

Plantings made at the rate of six pecks of seed an acre have given the best wheat yields on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station farm where experiments have been conducted for many years to determine the best rate of seeding in Kentucky, according to E. J. Kinney, a member of the station agronomy department. This amount is sufficient in nearly all cases but to sow less than six pecks an acre is only advisable where the soil is extremely rich or the seedlings made very early in the season. The statement was made in response to scores of inquiries being received at this time of the year from farmers in all parts of the state who are making preparations for wheat planting.

"Some years, five pecks of seed an acre have given yields just as large as those obtained from six pecks of seed but in no case have the yields from the smaller amount of seed been larger. On very rich tobacco land, four pecks of seed an acre occasionally have given yields as large as those from other rates of seeding. However, on corn and where wheat does not stool so readily, seedlings made at a lower rate than six pecks an acre practically never have given yields quite as large as those obtained from six pecks of seed an acre.

"Occasionally, in very severe winters, seven to eight pecks an acre have given larger yields than those obtained from six pecks an acre. Kentucky farmers often sow five pecks an acre, or even a bushel in tobacco land. Under most conditions, this rate of seeding will give practically a full crop. It is true that wheat will stool out extensively when sown thin but is more likely to straw fall in such cases and seldom yields as well. Seven pecks to the acre probably would be advisable if the wheat is to be pastured to a considerable extent.

"The much advertised 'Peck-to-the-Acre' or 'Maverick' wheat, claimed by its introducers to give full yields when sown at the rate of a peck or two to the acre, when seeded at this rate on the station farm has given yields from four to eight bushels an acre less than were obtained when six pecks were sown to the acre. Two pecks an acre of seed from this variety have given an average of 35 bushels an acre while six pecks have given approximately 30 bushels."

In the Beauty Parlor

By JOHN PALMER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

"What, Mrs. Rintoul? Her that used to come in here to have her face massaged pretty nearly every day? Fine looking woman she was, wasn't she? Yes, there's a story about that, and I don't mind telling it you, now that she's left these parts."

"You remember Freddy Laurie, who married Squire Embree's daughter? Good-hearted fellow he was, but wild, and couldn't resist women. He hadn't been married more than a year before Mrs. Rintoul and he—well, I don't want to speak hard of any one, but it was easy to see how things lay between those two. Fascinated with each other from the start, they were, and poor Mrs. Laurie crying her eyes out in the Laurie place."

"Night after night he'd been driving about with Mrs. Rintoul. Freddy wasn't more than thirty, and she must have been forty if she was a day, though she didn't look it. Infatuated they were, but she was more infatuated with him than he was with her, I guess."

"You know when a woman gets to be around forty, all the fires of youth are apt to burn up in her again. Especially if she's been unbaptized married, as Mrs. Rintoul had been. She was crazy about him from the first, and it was that that attracted him."

"That was when she began coming in here to have her face massaged. She didn't look forty, but there's no way—no, absolutely no way—in which a woman of forty can look like a girl of twenty-five. They all think they can, though. Mrs. Rintoul looked five years younger than she was, but she had little lines about the corners of her eyes and mouth, she hadn't the firmness of flesh that a young woman has. And the massaging helped some, but it didn't bring back youth."

"Matty was with me then—you remember her? That tall, dark girl who was so good at manicuring. She got friendly with Mrs. Rintoul, and Mrs. Rintoul used to confide in her—most everything, save that she never mentioned Freddy Laurie's name. Then Matty told her about the doctor that made a specialty of taking out wrinkles by operating."

"Of course that's really the only permanent cure. You can massage and massage, but the lines will always come back again unless you take a flap of the loose skin away and tighten the whole face up. That's what Matty advised—and Mrs. Rintoul fell for it."

"Not good business of Matty's? I told her so. I reckoned it cost her ten dollars a week, what with the massage and the hair dressing. Matty was a fool in a way—but anyhow the harm was done."

"Mrs. Rintoul went to Dr. Deering. Called himself a doctor, though I guess he never saw the inside of any medical school. Why, they're not allowed to do operations unless for sickness, I've heard. However, he knew his job all right. There's plenty of foolish women in this town he's operated on at two hundred and fifty apiece—and changed their faces so that you'd hardly know they were the same people."

"Mrs. Rintoul went to him, and after that she stayed home for two weeks, waiting for the scars to heal. They make the cuts under the hair, you know. Matty went up to the house to see her while she was convalescing, and the report she brought back was perfectly startling. She said Mrs. Rintoul hadn't a line in her face—just as smooth as a baby's. Lord, what some women will do when they're infatuated with a man!"

"The day came when she was out. Of course Freddy Laurie didn't know what she'd been doing. He thought she was ill with grippie, and every day he was around there with flowers, and poor Mrs. Laurie crying up at the Laurie place."

"It was Mrs. Rintoul's maid told Matty what happened when they met. Young Laurie stared at her as if she'd turned black. 'I didn't seem to recognize you somehow,' the maid heard him say. 'That was all—just that. And Mrs. Rintoul turned as white as a ghost, and soon after Mr. Laurie came away.'

"They met once or twice after that, but their love-making was at an end. When I saw Mrs. Rintoul I saw what had happened. You see, before the operation she'd been a sweet-looking woman. After it—well, everything was different—her with her smooth, baby face and her mature figure. She was a woman of thirty-five just the same—nothing could alter that; but her face—didn't it."

"So I don't advise my customers to have anything to do with Dr. Deering."

A Profitable Ruse.

A physician was walking up Broadway when he saw a dentist friend looking at some shirts in a show window. Just then a panhandler stepped up to the dentist and began to unravel a hard-luck story. To the physician's astonishment the dentist lifted his hand to his ear and said, raising his voice considerably:

"How's that? You'd have to speak louder. I'm hard of hearing." The panhandler hurried away, grinning to himself. The physician walked up and laid his hand on the dentist's shoulder. "Jim," he said, "you seem to have ear trouble."

"No, perfectly normal," was the reply. "But that chap was a professional, and 'playing deaf' is the best way I know to get rid of that kind."

MORNING AFTER

By EDNA WILLIS SWIFT

Mr. Blair looked across the table at his wife. His face showed affectionate concern, yet his words, when they came, gave evidence of the unvarnished truthfulness of a husband of 15 years' duration. "Maria," he said calmly, "you look like a picked gull."

His wife's face registered a just indignation.

"A what?" she gasped.

Her husband's explanation carried an apologetic tone. "Now, don't ruffle up your feathers, dear. I didn't mean anything dear. Just an old saying we had down home when anyone was tired. And you are tired, aren't you, Maria?"

Mrs. Blair sighed. "I'll say I am," she agreed, in unpolite vehemence. "Do you wonder, Bob?"

Mr. Blair nodded his maple-steady. Then, in the portentous manner of a man stating a fact hitherto unknown in this wilding world, and especially to his wife, he replied: "To you, Maria, that for the last 15 years, with the exception of a few miserly weeks, you have been 'on the job' every morning, sending me away with a smile."

Who knew better? Mrs. Blair smiled.

"There is my suggestion, every morning, during the summer months as you know, I eat only uncooked breakfast foods. There is absolutely no need of your rising just to sit at the opposite side of the table to see that I flourish. Get up, Maria!"

Maria did. He continued: "I have decided that the best remedy in the world for you is sleep—nature's sweet restorer. So tomorrow morning we will begin. I impress on your subconscious mind, tonight, the fact that it is going on vacation, and believe me, Maria, this rest will do you more good than all the seaside resorts in the world, eaten up with mosquitoes and lacking the comforts of a home. What do you say?"

Maria, from force of habit, and also to keep the peace, consented.

The next morning Mr. Blair jumped blithely out of bed. He meant well. Oh, yes, he was a good man. But man proposes and so on. You doubtless have heard this remark of ancient vintage. His too came in contact with a pin dropped on the floor by some emissary of the evil one. He emitted a howl that would have awakened the dead. Mrs. Blair sat bolt upright. Her husband was tossing his head, but immediately soothed her.

"It's nothing, Maria—nothing. Just knocked my foot a little. Relax!" And Mrs. Blair "relaxed."

"Maria!" Out of nowhere into the now! Her husband's voice broke in upon dreams. "The milk! Which bottle is mine?"

She told him, sleepily. "Anything else you want to know?"

"No nothing. She's in to sleep." And so weary was she, and so strong the influence of the dream, that nature again won.

For a few minutes, however, once again a realistic voice woke her. "Maria, where do you keep the evaporated milk? Sorry to wake you, but I can't find it."

"On the second shelf, dear, with the canned goods. Do you believe you can find it, or shall I get up?" Again the negative answer, the softly spoken "Sh!" and the exhortation to sleep.

But this dream was horrifying—stupendous! She was falling—falling! Would no one save her? Then she sat bolt upright in bed, her subconscious mind registering disaster. She heard the clatter and bang of many causes—a remark in her husband's voice not tolerated in polite society. What would the people in the lower suite think? Bob always gave way to moods, as if he lived in the wilderness. She reached the door, when she was confronted by her husband.

"Go back to bed, dear—you promised I only knocked down a can or two. Please, Maria!" And Maria wearily consented.

This time, however, she barely reached the bed when a terrifying hiss and an explosive remark in her husband's voice reached her seething brain. She fairly flew to the kitchen in the corner, his huge yellow sides fairly bristling with anger, sat Pom-pom, the beloved cat. Never having been subject to the slightest mishap, touch, his humiliation was all the more poignant now. Her husband looked somewhat frightened as he gazed on the indignant feline.

"That fool cat!" he raged, "began hissing up against me when I tried to lift the kettle. A little drop of hot water fell on his paw. You would think I tried to kill him. Hah! What a demon! That's what comes of your making such an idiot of him. Who runs this house? That cat or me?" He became slightly confused. Pom-pom, his rage still unabated, crouched as if to spring.

To comfort both was the work of a moment. Another, and she was back in the kitchen, in slippers and kimono. "Don't you think I had better stay up now, dear. It is so late!" she asked. Isn't there something I can do for you?"

Mr. Blair, profligate, smiled. "I'm sorry, dear, things went so badly this morning. But as long as you're up, and I've made coffee, I think I'll have a piece of that steak we had last night. It was extra good. Is there any left?" This, on her day of rest! Her subconscious mind registered work!

Nation's Business

Turning to Highway Transportation

That the business of the Nation is turning more and more to highway transportation is indicated by statistics on motor-vehicle registration as of July 1st, compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Registration of passenger cars, taxis, buses, and motor trucks totaled 10,620,471 on this date, an increase of 157,176, which is a healthy growth, as the first half of the year is the season for registration of new vehicles.

The surprising fact, however, is that of the 157,176 increase in registration, motor trucks constituted 116,701, against 35,030 passenger cars and 5,443 taxis and buses. This means an increase of over 16 per cent of the number of motor trucks at the beginning of the year. Figures are not available to show what part of the increase of 5,443, or nearly 1 per cent, in the taxi and bus registration is due to the increase in the number of buses traversing rural and suburban routes, but it is very probable that a considerable part of the increase is due to the development of this new form of transportation.

It has been frequently said that the traffic is always ready and waiting when good roads are built, and that the commercial vehicle, as a class, is more handicapped by lack of good roads than the pleasure vehicle. The increase in the registration of commercial vehicles, coupled with the present activity in highway construction, seems to bear out this statement in the opinion of department officials.

The table of statistics issued by the bureau shows a registration of 9,467,874 private cars, 55,990 taxis and buses, and 1,096,605 motor trucks, making a total of 10,620,471. Motor cycles are not included, there being 149,921 against 126,231 at the beginning of the year.

Mr. Blair, profligate, smiled. "I'm sorry, dear, things went so badly this morning. But as long as you're up, and I've made coffee, I think I'll have a piece of that steak we had last night. It was extra good. Is there any left?" This, on her day of rest! Her subconscious mind registered work!

NICOTINE KILLS STRIPED BEETLE

When Applied in a Mixture It Has Been Found Effective in Protecting Plants.

POISON ACTS AS REPELLENT

Insect Makes Its Appearance Suddenly and in Large Numbers and Serious Injury May Result if Application is Neglected.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Nicotine sulphate, when applied in a mixture with a dust, has been found by the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture to protect young cucumbers, melons and related crops successfully from the ravages of the striped cucumber beetle. Department Circular 224, "Nicotine Dust for Control of the Striped Cucumber Beetle," by W. H. White, scientific assistant in truck-crop insect investigations, recently issued, gives the results of various experiments at Arlington farm and directions for preparing and applying the dust.

Amount to Apply.
A dust mixture containing 4 per cent nicotine proved as effective as those containing greater amounts, and

Cucumbers of Uniform Size Result if

is therefore recommended. One-fourth to one-half an ounce to the hill is effective for one application. The dust acts as a repellent and also kills the beetles when they come into contact with it. When applied properly it drives the insects from the cracks in the soil.

Type of Effective Duster.

A duster that will throw a good volume of dust quickly and forcibly to prevent the beetle from escaping by flight should be used. A cheese-cloth sack or knapsack-bellows type of duster is effective on small areas. The dust must be applied as soon as the plants appear above the ground, so that they are well covered. The insect makes its appearance suddenly and in large numbers and serious damage may result if this application is neglected.

Department Circular 224 may be obtained free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

MARRIED MEN BEST WORKERS

Chances for Securing Employment on Farm Are Less Than 50 Per Cent for Single Men.

If you want a job on a farm your chances of getting it are slightly better than 50 per cent if you are married, and slightly less than 50 per cent if single. But if you're married and have children your chances are around 45 per cent.

The United States Department of Agriculture has found that, of 1,201 farm jobs advertised in eastern farm papers from 1920 to 1922, single men were wanted in 387 instances, and married men in 416 instances. In 394 cases the social requirements were not stated.

Of the advertisements for married men children specifically were not wanted in 54 instances. Children were wanted or were permissible in 14 instances.

Many farmers who hire laborers have no dwellings to let and consequently cannot employ married men, it is said. If the farmer has a dwelling for a laborer's family he prefers that it should be occupied.

SILO FOR STORING COW FEED

One Should Be Constructed Where Farmer Has as Many as Six or Seven Dairy Animals.

Build a silo for storing feed if you have as many as six or seven cows. A home-made stave silo 10 by 24 feet will cost less than was paid last winter for five tons of hay. Four acres of corn will fill it and do the work of ten acres of hay.

GENTLE TREATMENT IS BEST

It Pays to Keep Milking Periods as Regular as Possible and Milk in Same Order.

It pays to treat the cows gently and firmly, to keep the milking periods as nearly regular as possible, to milk in the same order, and for each milker to milk the same cows each time. This is necessary to the highest development of a herd no matter if the influence in individual cases seems insignificant.

Late Corn This Year is Best Suited for Silage

Practically all late corn grown in Kentucky during the summer just past will be better suited for silage than for any other form of feed, according to Wayland Rhoads, beef cattle specialist of the College of Agriculture. As a result of dry weather experienced throughout the state during the corn growing season, the late corn crop contains more stalk than grain, thus making it especially desirable as silage. Any farmer who has a field of late corn and an empty silo has the possibilities for a full supply of good winter feed for his cattle.

"Of the 11,000 silos in the state, practically all of them will be filled this fall. During the last two years when labor costs were high and feed costs low, there have been a few cases where the silo was not as profitable as dry feeding. However, many farmers have found that the silo was a great saver of feed even under these conditions. Having proved its value to the farmer who keeps ten cows or more throughout the winter, the silo is now past the experimental stage. In the case of a dairy, this method of storing feed saves from 30 to 40 per cent of the feed bill. Where steers are to be fattened in the winter feed lot, the feeding of silage in the ration is the general rule because of the cheaper gains which can be produced by this method. On farms where a breeding herd is kept, the silo is even more valuable.

"If cattle are to be carried through the winter and finished on grass the following spring and summer, the same field of corn that is fed dry will feed one-third more cattle if placed in the silo. The grains made by the cattle the following spring on grass are about the same under the two methods of feeding. If the corn has become dry before the silage is made, it is best to add water as the silo is being filled."

Farmers Take Steps To Make Poultry Pay

Kentucky farmers are showing increased interest in the many practical steps that can be taken to make poultry raising more profitable in the state, poultrymen at the College of Agriculture say. Birds of excellent quality that have been exhibited by farmers at the many county district fairs held over the state during the summer just past, new poultry houses being built in many sections of the state and inquiries from farmers as to the best methods of flock feeding mark the progress that is being made in the improvement of the state's farm poultry business, they say.

"One of the things that every farmer can do at this time of the year toward making his farm poultry flock more profitable is to separate hens and pullets and put the latter in their winter quarters where they can be fed for winter egg production," J. R. Smith, one of the college poultrymen said. "Getting the birds in good flesh at this time of the year and keeping them in that condition is the best way to get heavy winter egg production and avoid fall and winter moulting among pullets. This can be done easily if the pullets receive all the mash and grain that they will eat.

"Experiments have shown that a mash made of 150 pounds each of middlings and bran and 100 pounds each of corn meal and tankage is an excellent one for pullets at this time of the year. This should be placed in a hopper and kept before the birds at all times. In addition, they should receive all the grain they will eat. A good grain mixture may be made of 70 pounds of corn and 30 pounds of oats or wheat. Many poultrymen make a practice of keeping grain on the floor of the house all the time or in a hopper where the birds can pick at it whenever hungry.

Advising people that they will live longer if they breathe slowly, a physical training expert exhorts us to "go to" the tortoise. He explains that the tortoise, the slowest breathing animal of all, lives to 1,000 years.

Important, if True.
The first flower seen by a bride on her wedding day must be white if she is to be happy. If her wedding wreath is uncovered by a veil she repents at leisure, and if she forgets her bouquet and returns for it, misfortune follows. The girl who catches the bride's bouquet will be married within a year, while one who "tries on" either veil or wreath, will die an old maid.

Early Struggles Beneficial.
You can't always tell what's in a lad from knowing his start. Many a poor family has worth in it that only hard problems can develop. When the little comes such children of fortune will arise and eat what fate has been reluctant to bestow. And often straitened circumstances in early life bring untold fitness later. The struggle to succeed develops habit that remains dynamic through life.—GRI.

Merely Looks Wicked.
The dragonfly to which we often give the name of "devil's darting needle" or "horse stinger" is a much maligned creature. Because of the slender-like finish to its long wicked-looking body many persons fear its sting. Dragonflies, however, cannot sting. They have no stingers. In place of such weapon, the insect's head is provided with strong jaws with which it catches butterflies and tears them to pieces.

EXECUTOR'S SALE

The undersigned as executors of William C. Fish, deceased, will on Saturday, Oct. 14th

AT TEN A. M.

offer for sale at public auction on the premises, about one-half mile from Paint Lick, Kentucky on the Madison County side, and fronting the Richmond and Lancaster turnpike, the farm owned by him consisting of 210 acres of land.

This farm is ideally located, being about half way between Richmond and Lancaster and close to Paint Lick, one of the best small towns in Central Kentucky, and having a large brick graded school. The neighborhood is the very best that can be found anywhere. The farm itself is a very fertile farm, which was occupied by Mr. Fish for many years before he moved to Richmond. Has been well taken care of and the soil will raise the very best tobacco or any other crops raised in Kentucky. This farm is improved by a large frame residence, beautifully situated on top of a hill, with a large yard filled with shade trees and shrubbery of every kind. Has a splendid garage, and all necessary out-buildings. It also has a large tobacco barn that will house fifteen acres of tobacco, a splendidly constructed stock barn, well equipped, with a large cistern adjoining same. The farm is well watered, being supplied by an everlasting spring, with water trough already installed and a good pond, also two large cisterns at the residence. The farm is also improved by two tenant houses, one of them the old toll gate house on Richmond and Lancaster pike. About 65 acres of this farm was cultivated in corn and tobacco in 1922 and will be sown in rye by the present owner. About 25 acres was in rye in 1922 and the balance in grass.

TERMS: The farm will be sold for ten per cent cash on the day of sale and 23 1-3 per cent cash on the first day of January, 1923, at which time deed will be delivered and possession given. In case the purchaser desires, he will be permitted to execute bond with good security on the day of sale to pay one-third cash on January 1st, 1923, instead of paying ten per cent down. The purchaser will be given the option to pay the remainder as he desires, the whole in cash or if he prefers, may pay it in five equal installments, due one, two, three, four and five years from January 1st, 1923.

This farm is sold pursuant to the directions of the will of the late William C. Fish and bidding will be absolutely free and open, with no by-bidding of any kind permitted. Prospective purchasers are invited to inspect the premises now occupied by Mr. Luther Fish. There is no more desirable farm of 210 acres of land, considering location, fertility and improvements in Central Kentucky.

BEST VARIETIES OF BROOM CORN

Success With Crop Depends Largely on Proper Care During Harvesting Period.

FIRST PICK MATURED HEADS

Proper Time for Harvesting is When Fiber is Deep Green From Tip to Knuckle—Avoid Immature and Overripe Bruch.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Success in handling either of the two varieties of broom corn produced in the United States—Standard and Dwarf—depends to a large extent on proper care during the harvesting period. Even with the most efficient systems of distribution it is impossible to overcome the handicap of an inferior product, says the United States Department of Agriculture in a new publication, Department Bulletin 1079, Marketing Broom Corn, prepared by G. H. Aigue, assistant in marketing hay and broom corn.

Selection of Heads. The selection of properly matured heads is a matter for first attention. Broom corn is in the proper stage for harvest when the fiber is deep green from tip to knuckle, a stage that may be reached when the head is in bloom or not until the seed is in the dough stage. Immature fiber lacks elasticity shrivels perceptibly on curing, and presents an uninviting appearance when baled. Overripe trash is equally undesirable.

Preventable waste among manufacturers can be traced in many instances to the first steps in harvesting. In general, anything unfit for use in the manufacture of brooms should, so far as practicable, be left in the fields. To command the best price, broom corn must be free from seed and well baled.

Methods of Handling. The bulletin discusses the various methods of handling broom corn on the farm and in the process of distribution, including marketing, practices employed by various classes of dealers, methods of sampling, storage facilities, and co-operative marketing. Copies of it may be had free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

GRASS GROWN WITHOUT SEED

Best Strains Have Been Developed by Cutting 10 Runners From Thrifty Looking Spots.

Many good turf grasses that reproduce by runners have lost the habit of producing seed and for this reason the United States Department of Agriculture has been experimenting with the vegetative propagation of some of the most satisfactory strains of turf grasses. Better strains have been developed by finding spots in lawns and on golf courses where the turf was particularly good, cutting up the runners and planting these cuttings in increase plots. Most of this work has been done in northern states, although some good strains of Bermuda grass have been selected which give promise of value in the South.

A number of commercial growers have been working on these improved grasses and now have cuttings for sale. However, it is possible for a person to improve his own lawn or for a golf club to improve the turf on the course by selecting spots where the grass is particularly good and growing the cut runners in rows in a garden or field. When the good strain has been increased sufficiently in this way the old lawn or turf may be plowed up and the new strain established.

POULTRY LITTER HELPS SOIL

Straw Filled With Droppings is One of Most Valuable Fertilizers for Gardens.

Poultry litter, particularly straw filled with droppings, is one of the most valuable fertilizers for gardens and small fruits. It is particularly worth while where clay soils are to be worked, because in a few seasons the addition of this litter will completely change the character of the soil and give one a rich, friable and easily worked soil capable of producing almost any garden crop, whether vegetables or flowers.

The Loose String

By HUBERT RAY

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"Two men died through this instrument?"

"We don't know that. They were found lying dead, apparently of apoplexy, with this instrument at their feet."

"They'd taken it down from the wall?"

"Evidently."

"What is it?"

"The sacred lute of Tamo, the Indian goddess of death. Old Major Titchener took it from an Indian temple. He brought it home with him and died five months later."

"And his nephew, George Titchener, how long had he been in possession of the piece?"

"Two months. He was only thirty. One doesn't expect to die of apoplexy at thirty."

"No chance of poison?"

"Absolutely none. Poison was suspected at first, but the bodies and the instrument were submitted to the most careful analysis."

"Yet there is a legend that possession of this lute means death?"

"It was once taken from the temple, centuries ago, by the conqueror Tabur. His player died. His second player died. His favorite wife died—all playing the instrument. Then it was returned to the temple."

Old Falconer mused. He knew a good deal about Indian mythology, and he was trying to recall something he had once read. He examined the lute for the twentieth time. It had four strings. Three of them were tuned, the fourth, when plucked, gave out no sound at all. It was quite loose—yet it was meant to be loose, for it was fitted in its grooves in such a way that it was impossible to adjust it.

"Yes, that string was meant to be loose," said the younger man. "No one knows why. It's something connected with the worship of Tamo."

"A deadly poison that is communicated to the fingers?" Falconer suggested.

"Absolutely not. That string's been scraped and analyzed," replied the other.

"I'll solve the problem by morning," said Falconer. "I'm trying to remember something. Go to bed, Simpson."

"I hope there won't be a third fatality," suggested Simpson. "I think you'd better not play with the thing, Falconer. As you know, the coroner insists it was all a coincidence, that both deaths were due to apoplexy. Let's turn the beastly thing."

"Don't worry about me, old man," Falconer returned. "I think I'm on the track of the mystery. Listen!" He plucked the loose string. "Can you hear anything?"

"Of course I can hear something," answered Simpson. "It sounds exactly as if one were plucking a piece of string."

"Nothing musical?"

"Of course not. Can you?"

"Not a sound. All right, I'm on the track, Simpson."

"See here, old man, I'd infinitely rather you wouldn't examine the thing. It's dangerous. I'm convinced you're in peril."

"I'm going to solve this thing by morning," answered Falconer.

Simpson went to bed, but for a long time he was unable to sleep. He listened to old Falconer moaning about in the room underneath him. Sometimes he fancied he heard the soft tinkle of the lute strings. And gradually, as the night wore on, an awful terror began to oppress him. Presentment of evil grew so strong that at last he put on his dressing-gown and went softly down the stairs, determined to stop Falconer from playing with the infernal thing.

He had just reached the door when he heard a sharp, strangled cry, followed by the sound of a heavy body falling. He rushed in.

Falconer lay upon the floor, and a single glance showed Simpson that he was dead.

Some papers on the table drew Simpson's attention. Falconer had been writing. Mechanically he picked them up and read:

"I have discovered the mystery of the loose string, and it is the most devilish invention ever made by humanity."

"Just as there are sounds so high that the human ear cannot distinguish them, so there are sounds composed of such heavy vibrations that they are inaudible. Such is the loose string. Plucked at a certain point it gives out vibrations heavy enough to destroy life—as concussion does."

The two men who died must have plucked at the string until they touched just the point that calls out these vibrations. I have had a lucky escape. I shall not touch the string any more, except just once to find out—"

The "dark day" occurred May 19, 1780. It was so called on account of the remarkable darkness extending over all New England. In some places persons could not see to read common print in the open air. The true cause of this phenomenon is not known.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET
FOR CONGRESS
HON. RALPH GILBERT

Some people read much, but do very little thinking. They see the words in print before them, but not the great fundamental truths that inspire those words.

The habit of reading is one of inestimable value to the individual, but it should not be carried beyond the point where intelligent thought can dissect the subject and master the secrets that are not otherwise revealed.

Cramming the mind is like jamming the cylinder of an engine. It becomes too tight to function, and is thus rendered useless.

Read a little, think a lot, and you will travel easier and go farther on your way.

When you come to the forks in the road, what do you do? Does instinct tell you which way to go?

Instinct may lead you astray occasionally, but in a majority of cases it will point the way you should go.

The man who cultivates his instinct and acts upon it moves forward.

He who gropes in doubt stands still.

We should never allow ourselves to become perfectly contented. This may seem strange advice, but it isn't.

When we are perfectly contented there is nothing else that we desire, and without desire there can be no ambition, no incentive to push forward and accomplish greater things.

Perhaps the turtle on a log on a sunny day is content with his lot. But who wants to be a turtle?

Carpentier, idol of the French prize fighting ring, was knocked out by Jack Dempsey, American pugilist who fought nothing worse than mosquitoes during the war.

Now Mr. Carpentier has been knocked out by a negro practically unknown to the sawdust ring.

A few more knockings from gentlemen of doubtful standing may induce him to knock himself out of the business of battering other people up for money and do something that is really worth while.

As a soldier during the war Carpentier made an excellent record.

As a professional bruiser he is outclassed.

He has yet time in which to become a man.

It is unwise to frighten your child by picturing a bogie man who is laying in wait to devour it.

Timidity is natural to the young man, and cowardice is but a step removed from timidity.

You don't want your child to develop a yellow streak.

Don't conceive yourself that you can save nothing on your present income no matter how small it may be.

The mind that cannot plan is incapable of accomplishing, and employers know full well that the man who cannot save on a moderate income is not the person to whom a greater one should be paid.

Ability will always find a way, and ability is what employers want these days.

Do you ever change your mind?

The stubborn man seldom changes his. That is the reason why he is known as a stubborn one instead of as a successful one.

Great minds are susceptible to change upon submission of proof. Little ones are unable to grasp the proof, and therefore always remain little, and in time become stubborn.

When a strong mind changes it is invariably for the better. That makes it even stronger, as the small one becomes smaller.

Many protests have been registered against the exorbitant price of coal, and with just cause. But so long as the public contents itself with protesting, the operators will content themselves with pocketing their enormous profits.

About the only way to prevent wars is for every nation not involved to refuse to lend money or sell supplies to the combatants. But what country has ever been known to sidetrack a lot of fat war contracts?

Here's a case of hard luck. A young man who bluffed a ball player with a pop bottle gave his victim a lot of sympathetic notoriety, but failed to get his own name in the newspapers.

If the advocates of impartial law enforcement will stand up and be counted we fear the result will be nothing. Everybody wants himself to be exempt.

Up to The Press

"The newspapers ought to quit publishing so much scandal."

You can hear such remarks any day in the year, and from highly intelligent people.

But we disagree. They do not stop to think.

Unfortunately, we have reached the point in this country where but little respect is shown for our laws, because the laws are indifferently enforced, or not enforced at all.

Certain people can evade them with ease. Others, less fortunate, must pay the penalty.

Occasionally there is a notable exception to this rule, but only occasionally. It is for this reason we are losing our respect for law and its manner of enforcement.

But it is different with the great newspapers of the country—and also with the smaller ones. They tell the truth as they find it. The man of great wealth who forgets his manhood is as pitilessly exposed as the one without a dollar—perhaps more so.

This pitiless publicity of the press is the one safeguard that stands between respectability and a reign of debauchery that would rival the days of Sodom and Gomorrah.

There are millions of pure and high minded people in this country, but there are other millions who reek with clandestine infamy.

Some agency must keep this debauched element in check for the welfare of society in general.

The press, through its publicity, is meeting with a reasonable degree of success, where the law is but a dismal failure.

Think before you criticize.

Why Nothing

But Smoke?

Periodically—almost daily the newspapers of our large cities contain lurid stories of fabulous sums of money involved in rum running cases unearthed by the prohibition agents. Sometimes it is with the connivance of some of the agents themselves.

Names, facts, and dates are often given, and there appears to be no doubt as to the correctness of these statements.

Presumably the evidence is passed on to the public prosecutors, whose duty it is to convict law violators and send them to jail.

But, presumably, some of these prosecutors are afflicted with conveniently short memories. And, presumably, their memories have a habit of failing them at the most critical time.

Why so much smoke and no fire? Why so much evidence and so little prosecution?

Is it a case of graft, fear to prosecute, or just plain inefficiency?

In whatever case it may be, why do we keep such birds in public office?

Centre Vs. Mississippi

A good delegation from Lancaster and this county will see the Centre-Mississippi game at Danville next Saturday afternoon.

Centre is sustaining her past reputation and last Saturday defeated Clemson by a comparative easy victory, the final score being 21 to 0. Centre's line, which was weakened by the loss of Capt. Roberts, performed brilliantly in the game against Clemson, says George Joplin, Jr., in the Lexington Herald. Lynch, a substitute of last year, and Lemon, half-back, who was moved up to Capt. Roberts' end, greatly impressed their tutors with their clean cut performance.

The Colonels will probably be without the services of their plunging fullback, Thomason, in the Mississippi contest Saturday. The big Newport lad got some heavy blows around his legs in the Clemson tilt and will not be used this week unless necessary. Tanner, who is always good for a gain through the line, will nicely care for the fullback station. Hump burrowed through Purple defense of Clemson for 68 yards on 18 tries and the weather was not at all to his liking.

The University of Mississippi combination is expected to put up a stubborn battle against the Colonels who have the weight and ability.

Saturday's tussle will give Kentuckians their last opportunity to see the Colonels in action before the Harvard game, as they meet Virginia Polytechnic Institute in Richmond on the Saturday before the Cambridge intersectional affair.

In Herbert Covington, Centre followers believe they have another Bo McMillan. His passing Saturday was the equal of the famous Bo's in his palmist days. His broken field running was even better and his generalship will not suffer by comparison.

With Tanner, Harlett and Snowday in the backfield, Owensboro will be well represented, as the trio live in the county of Daviess. Mayfield, with Covington and Lemon, will also be well represented.

$100,000 ASKED

For Kentucky Children's Home Society by Christmas

So great is the problem of the homeless child in Kentucky; so intertwined with church, school and society that the only institution in the state—the Kentucky Children's Home Society—is taxed to capacity and must construct another building if hundreds are to be given shelter and a home.

More than $100,000 is needed and to raise this sum the society will start immediately a campaign throughout the various counties and in the schools that the donations by the children may build the third unit of the cottage village at Lyndon, as a memorial dedicated to the homeless little ones.

For a quarter of a century the society was housed in Louisville in an old row of residences. George L. Schon, superintendent, struggled for a decade to raise money to buy the 87 acre tract at Lyndon and last spring his dreams were realized when the first two units of the village were completed and ready for occupancy. To the new home were moved the 160 little children. Despite the lateness of the year, each boy began planting a garden, with the result that food enough was raised to supply the table and to can and preserve more than 1,000 gallons of food for winter use.

At this time, to withhold help from the Kentucky Children's Home Society means the counties must take up the work of caring for the homeless hundreds in the state, with the attendant increase in county taxes and the increase in delinquency thru the evil surroundings of the poorhouses in which they must find shelter.

For this humanitarian cause, the people of the state are asked for $100,000 by Christmas in order that work may be started by early spring.

PRESIDENT NOT TO CAMPAIGN

Harding Declines Speaking Dates in Various Parts of The Country

Washington—President Harding plans to take very little, if any, personal part in the campaign now getting under way to determine the political complexion of the sixty-eighth Congress, it was learned.

As the titular head of his party the President will from time to time participate in party councils and probably offer some suggestions and advice, but this will be in conference and not from the stump. Numerous requests have been made of Mr. Harding for speaking dates in various parts of the country during the six weeks that intervenes between now and November 7th, but invariably these have been turned down and administration spokesmen said there would be no presidential stumping this year with its accompanying exploitation of the voters for the return of a Congress of his own political liking.

The political situation in a number of important states was thoroughly canvassed by the President and his advisers in conference that preceded the departure of Congress, and Mr. Harding is said to feel no apprehension over the continued control of Congress by the Republicans.

NO CREDENCE

Is Placed in the Report That Threats Have Been Made Against the Loose Leaf Houses by President James C. Stone, of The Association

Lexington, Ky. "I fear the wish is father to the thought," said James C. Stone, president and general manager of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, when asked recently regarding reports from loose leaf warehouses sources of threats against the Kenton Loose Leaf Warehouse Company, which is behind a tobacco fair in Covington the last week of October.

"Nothing would please the enemies of the burley association better than some overt act on the part of members of the association," Mr. Stone said. "So far as I have been able to learn, there have been no threats on the part of any of our members in Northern Kentucky but they have resented the attempt of the warehouse management to induce members of our association to deliver to this concern tobacco known to be pledged to the association, and it is this very thing against which our members have been warned."

FAMOUS RAMBOUILLET RAM GETS ATTENTION

Ranchers in West Study Result of Breeding Work.

Particularly Interested in Noted Sire,
Prince of Parowan—Uniformity and Good Type Produced
Are Exhibited.

(Prepared by the United States Department
of Agriculture.)

Ranchers from Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, and Montana, about 200 persons in all, recently attended a field day at the government sheep farm in eastern Idaho, where they studied the results of the breeding work done by the department, particularly that with Rambouillet. The famous Rambouillet ram, Prince of Parowan, attracted much attention from these range sheepmen. This ram, a particularly high-class sire, produced nearly 120 sons and daughters on the ranch last year. Of these, 28 selected rams and 58 ewes were exhibited in pens to show the uniformity and good type produced by the sire. Some of his grandsons were so much like his sons that it was difficult to pick them out. Stockmen consider that this ram is a "find" and equal to the best of the breed.

In addition to the breeding work on this range station studies are being made of various methods of year-round management and the effects on yields of wool and lambs, range improvement by grazing studies and re-seeding of abandoned areas and the range, shed lambing, and methods of watering sheep on parts of the range distant from water. Fences are now built so that it will be possible to carry out experiments on the use of range to the full capacity.

BABY BEEF VERY PROFITABLE

Production Can Be Made on Land
Worth Not More Than $150 Per Acre—Always "Toppers."

Baby beef production can be made most profitable on land worth not more than $150 an acre, of which at least 50 per cent is easily cultivated, says W. H. Peters, acting chief of the animal husbandry division of the University of Minnesota. By baby beef production, he says, is meant the growing, fattening and marketing of beef calves at ages ranging from 12 to 24 months, 16 to 18 months being the most economical at which to sell. "With sufficient fat on them when placed on the market, baby calves are always market toppers," Professor Peters says. "Baby beef production allows raising of more calves on the same amount of land than does production of stock or feeder cattle. Each good baby beef steer should sell for $20 to $25 more when one and one-half years old than the average feeder steer will bring at two and one-half years of age."

PLANT WALNUTS ON HIGHWAY

Minnesota Forester Receives 20,000
Trees for Distribution in Southern Minnesota.

Planting trees along Minnesota highways is well under way, following distribution of nearly 20,000 black walnuts, recently received by the state forestry department. The walnuts are to be planted along highways in the southern part of the state, according to W. T. Fox, state forester.

The plans of the forestry department have changed somewhat since the launching of the tree planting program, due to the fact that the demand for trees is greatly in excess of the available supply.

BEET TOP SILAGE IN RATION

Hay Requirements May Be Lessened
One-Half in Feeding for Beef,
Mutton or Milk.

The best feeding practices have demonstrated that by the use of beet top silage in the ration the hay requirements may be reduced by one-half in feeding for the production of beef, mutton, or milk. The succulent value of the silage supplements its actual feeding properties and that of forage and other feeds.

Hollow Heart.

Assignee Sale

OF

Real and Personal Property

As Assignee of Tom Tracy and Myrtle Tracy, the undersigned will on Tuesday, Oct. 17th,

AT TEN O'CLOCK A. M.

sell on the premises the farm of Tom Tracy, consisting of 89 ACRES OF GOOD SANDSTONE LAND on the East side of Johnson and Singer Creek pike, about three miles from Lancaster. Said land has a 7-acre, new tobacco barn and tenant house on same.

At the same time and place, I will as Assignee of Myrtle Tracy sell 75 ACRES OF LAND, right across the road from the Tom Tracy farm. This is the farm formerly owned by J. D. Naylor.

On each of these farms there is a mortgage with the Federal Land Bank which has 32½ years to run or purchaser has privilege to pay same within 4½ years. This makes the sale on the very best terms. This is an opportunity to buy a good farm with very little capital as purchaser will only have to raise the amount over and above the long time mortgage debt to buy same.

At the same time I will sell a lot of personal property, consisting of livestock and farming implements.

Terms on said personal property: All sums under $25.00 cash; over that sum three month's time, with good note drawing interest from date.

JAS. A. BEAZLEY

Robinson & Kauffman,
Atty's. for Assignee.

This handsome gift which cost quite a large sum, was donated very graciously by Mr. J. L. Guided by Electricity.

A French transatlantic steamship company was the first to experiment with the radiogoniometer invented by Bellini and Testi. By means of this apparatus the direction of an invisible vessel, sailing along a coast and emitting wireless signals, can be determined from two stations on the shore and its course can be accurately plotted. Conversely, a vessel furnished with a radiogoniometer can determine its place near a coast by observing the directions of the waves coming from two wireless stations on the shore, and can thus make its way in a fog when the coast lights are invisible.

About Child-Birth

AN eminent physician has shown to thousands of expectant mothers just how to be free from dread, and from much of the suffering which many mothers experience for months, right up to the moment when the little one arrives!

Mrs. Wm. Washington, 107 Louise Ave., Nashville, Tenn., says: "There is positively no woman on earth that could be without 'Mother's Friend' during expectancy if she only knew the value of comfort."

"Mother's Friend" is externally applied to the region of the abdomen, back and hips. It relieves the tension on nerves and ligaments as month follows month. Finally, it makes childbirth a joy instead of a painful dread.

Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait until it is too late. Write to Bradfield's Regulator Co., R. A. 47, Atlanta, Ga., for a free wonderful book containing information every expectant mother should have. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today. It is sold by all druggists—everywhere.

Rural School Children Need Hot Noon Lunch

With the opening of schools throughout Kentucky and the prospect of cold weather in the near future, the problem of the noonday lunch for children in rural schools again has come to the front as an important one that demands attention, according to Miss Maybelle Tarnell, head of the home economics department of the College of Agriculture. That this problem is receiving due consideration in many parts of the state is shown by the fact that a considerable number of schools are serving at least one hot dish to supplement the cold lunch brought by the children. However, the serious need of the hot lunch is realized by comparatively few persons.

"Under average conditions, rural school children in Kentucky follow a daily program that makes it necessary for them to get along on little more than two meals a day. As a rule they have breakfast at about six o'clock in the morning and by recess time are hungry enough to eat most the lunch which they have brought from home. What may be left after recess is insufficient for the noon lunch with the result that they go home hungry about four o'clock to eat another lunch that leaves them without any appetite for the evening meal. No man is willing to work on less than three full meals a day. School children, who are growing and studying can hardly be expected to do their best work on two meals a day.

"Perhaps the first requirement for starting a hot school lunch in any school is an active organization of persons interested in the welfare of the children that can superintend the project. This may be a parent-teachers' association, a community club or a group of farm women. The teacher of the school should naturally be a supporter of the project since she should be interested enough in her pupils to see that they are kept fit physically.

"Complete details dealing with starting a school lunch, financing the project, the equipment necessary, 15 suggested lunches and more than a score of recipes are given in extension circular No. 25 which may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington."

EMPHASIS ON FIELD SELECTION OF SEED CORN IN ALL STATES

Selecting Corn for Seed in the Field.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seed corn for next season's planting should be selected in the field from the standing stalks in September. The disappointing search for good seed corn every spring should be a sufficient reason for following this practice, strongly advocated by the United States Department of Agriculture. Any intelligent farmer can go into his own cornfield when the corn is mature and select high-grade seed if he has planted suitable types of corn and cultivated properly. If he has joined a county movement to develop certain standard varieties of corn which grow in that locality, and if he has raised these strains on his own land, he may reasonably expect a market for any surplus seed.

County Agents Report Progress. Various methods were followed last fall by the county agents of the Northern and Western states in their efforts to convince the farmers that field selection of corn was a good thing which would amply pay for any trouble involved. Similar tactics may well be used this season where for one reason or another the local people are not in the habit of field-selecting their seed corn.

In Steele county, Minnesota, selection between September 10 and September 20 was urged. The week of September 24 was chosen as "good seed corn week" in Nance county, Nebraska. It seems likely that the corresponding dates this year will be the best time to go out into the field and choose the most promising ears, noting the character of the plants on which they grow and the details which indicate a vigorous and healthy condition.

The county agent for Dakota county, Minnesota, reports that a permanent and reliable source of seed corn is being developed by getting certain farmers in the county to specialize in seed corn work. They are asked to produce a dependable type of improved corn and to put in facilities for drying and storing it properly. The average farmer is also encouraged to select the best ears for seed.

In Mississippi county, Missouri, the work done in relation to the field selection project in 1920 was mainly concentrated upon field selection of corn. This was carried out through community meetings which were held in cooperation with the county school superintendent. The advantages of best their own seed, but the definite work of safeguarding the seed corn supply of the county is being carried on with a few men who are really competent to produce certified seed corn and equipped to handle it. Eventually it is hoped that there will be a man in every township doing this seed corn work and, where possible, having seed corn houses in which to dry it.

In Scott county, Minnesota, last year, 4,000 acres of selected seed were planted. For their 1921 planting 32 farmers field-selected their seed corn, and all had a surplus to sell. Stearns county has 31 cooperators in seed corn work. Minnesota No. 12, Rustless White Dent, and Northwestern Dent were the varieties used. Some of this certified seed was awarded to 30 farmers with their farm bureau to new, thus insuring a good distribution for this year. The boys and girls of the county include field selection of seed corn in their club work.

Indiana Has School-Children's Contest. Indiana has been especially active in emphasizing the importance of having every farmer field-select his seed corn from the standing stalks. A report of the county agent leader for Indiana states that in White county a unique proposition was placed before the children in six rural township schools. The pupil and father were to pick out the best bushel of seed corn to be found in the seed at home. This was to be planted on one side of a field, for identification. Then in the fall the pupil is to pick out 30 or 40 ears from the standing stalks for seed, and later the method to the individual farmer were considered paramount, and the improvement of seed corn in the county was also stressed. The demonstration showed also how field selection would help to eliminate corn root rot, if ears were selected from stalks that were vigorous and not ripening prematurely and on stalks that showed no evidence of decay.

Evils of Railway and Coal Strikes in Figures

It seems that the settlement of the railroad strike does not include the Louisville and Nashville, nor the Chesapeake & Ohio, two of Kentucky's most important lines. The L. & N. is determined to protest the interests and rights of the 10,000 now employed by it in places deserted by the strikers, who were promised that their own rights would be respected in case the strikers returned to work. The attitude of the C. & O. is said to be the same and it is not likely that business in Kentucky will return to normal until these two roads can operate at something like normal.

The evils of the coal strike, which finally has been disposed of, are shown by the following figures published by the Literary Digest, in a discussion of the loss to the country through such a nonsensical method of settling an industrial dispute:

|-------------------------|---------------|
| Lost wages | $450,000,000 |
| Loss to operators | 40,000,000 |
| Loss to consumers | 100,000,000 |
| Loss in freight | 300,000,000 |
| Increased costs | 300,000,000 |

Total strike loss ..$1,190,000,000
The item of $300,000,000 of increased costs represents what the consumers will pay for coal as a result of the increase of $1 a ton on the price. It will be observed that in this case the public is the only losing party to the settlement, for the railroads will make up their losses by increased business, the operators by higher prices and the miners by preventing further wage cuts. There is no way, however, as the Digest observes, for the consumer to make his loss back.

In Memory

In loving memory of Corporal Jesse B. Calton, 301st Battalion, U. S. T. C., who was killed in the attack on the Hindenburg line September 29th, 1918.

When we first received the message, It was hard for us to understand, Why such a good one was taken from us.

And killed in that far off land. Though at last our hearts were comforted,

By the thought he loved so true. He was called to save a friend unworthy.

That he might live to be prepared too. He lived and died for those who loved him.

For those who knew him true, For the heaven which smiled above him.

And for the good that he might do. We think of him in silence.

No eyes can see us weep, But many a lonely tear is shed, When others are asleep.

And oh, dear brother, how we miss you, These four years have seemed so long.

But we hope again to meet you In that ever lasting home.

Baptist Church News

Beginning this week we are studying the meaning of church membership in its various phases. Our topic Wednesday night was "The Church and Its Mission." Next week the subject will be "The Bible as our Rule of Faith and Practice." Come and bring your Bible.

Two candidates were baptized on confession of faith at the river last Sunday afternoon. They accepted Christ as Saviour during the recent meetings. Others are expecting to join as soon as their letters are received. We extend an earnest invitation to others to place their membership with us now.

Choir practice will be held this week at Mrs. Dickerson's home at 7:30 Friday night. Those who will assist us in the service of song are invited to come.

The Ladies Aid will hold an exchange at Hamilton and Dickerson's store Saturday. Give them a call.

The services next Sunday are as follows: Sunday School at 9:45; preaching at 10:45, subject—"Spiritual Weapons." The Juniors will hold their service at 6:15 P. M., but there will be no preaching service in the evening.

This week marks the beginning of the pastor's second year of service on this field. The past year has been one of spiritual progress with some steps taken towards material expansion, and with the church almost unanimous in pledging spiritual co-operation in the call which was renewed last Sunday, we have reason to expect the best year in our history. Let us pray and work to that end.

Our Sunbeam Band, inactive for some time, reorganized recently with Mrs. A. E. Yelton, leader and Georgia Moore assistant. The following officers were elected:

Lilly Lee Yelton, president; Mary Ellen Williams, vice president; Ruth Dickerson, Secretary; Fannie Lee Walker, treasurer.

They had their first regular meeting Sunday afternoon. A good number were present and much interest manifested. Quite a number of the members took two mission study courses during the summer. They are eager to begin work again.

The G. A.'s are holding their regular meetings on the first and third Friday afternoons of each month. Loretta Estes will lead the meeting Friday afternoon. Subject—"Bringing Them In."

Please don't forget the monthly business meeting next Saturday at three o'clock. All members please be present.

Methodist Church News

We had a good number at the mid-week service last Wednesday night. Let's build up that service into one of the best in the church. The hour is from 7:00 to 7:45.

The pastor conducts a short children's service each Sunday morning. Considerable interest is being shown in this service and we are anxious that all the young people take part in the morning worship hour. The evening service is now begun at seven o'clock.

The topic for Epworth League Sunday night is, "The Perils of procrastination," with Miss Elizabeth Hagan as leader. The young people of the League will be entertained at the parsonage Friday night of this week. The monthly social of the League will provide many pleasant evenings for the members and their friends this fall and winter.

The pastor has just returned from Winchester, where he was in attendance the past three days at the State Sunday School Convention.

3,015 Cases on Perry Docket

The docket of the Perry Circuit Court embraces 3,015 cases, according to a paper read before the Hazard Bar Association by Bailey P. Wooten, chairman. Of the number, 317 are felonies, of which 28 are murder cases.

It is the greatest number ever before a Perry county court, and is thought to be the greatest of any county in the state.

It is rather a misnomer to refer to the coal operators as profiteers. A stronger term should be applied.

Democrats Gain 22 In Maine Legislature

One of the results of the Maine election on which the Republican press and speakers maintain silence is the Democratic gain of 22 members in the State legislature, where more than doubles the Democratic representation in that body.

A comparison of the returns from the four congressional districts with only a few minor precincts missing show an average falling off in Republican majorities of 10,000.

One of the most significant aftermaths of the Maine election is that the leading Republican paper of Maine, the Portland Press-Herald, attributes the heavy falling off of the Republican national administration. All of these facts are omitted by Republican speakers when they try to explain or make excuses for the vote in Maine.
